Bangor, Oct. 21, 1874.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot.
The undersigned, administrator of the estate of James M. Smith, late of Corinth, in said county, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay the just debts and charges of administration by the sum of three hundred dollars.
Wherefore your petitioner prays your honor to grant him a license to sell, at public or private sale, and convey the whole of the late homestead of said James M. Smith, situate in said Corinth, consisting of about 120 acres of land with the buildings thereon, as by a partial sale of any entire portion thereof, the residue would be greatly depreciated in value, to satisfy said debts, (including the reversion of the widow's dower therein,) to satisfy said debts, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.
Said real estate is the same described in a deed recorded in the Registry of deeds of said county.

BAYOLINE QUININE HAIR TONIC.
Something which has long been needed.
Every day we hear of some case of paralysis, softening of the brain or some nervous disorder of the head resulting from the use of hair preparations containing lead, sulphur, bismuth, or other mineral substances equally poisonous. That the use of these preparations is always attended with danger is an undisputed fact, they are dyes and should not be used for dressing the hair. What has long been needed is a preparation like Bayoline, which is not a restorer or dye, contains neither lead, sulphur, bismuth or any mineral substance whatever. It is a pure and harmless hair dressing, keeps the hair from falling out, promotes its growth, eradicates dandruff, cleanses the scalp, is not greasy or sticky, does not soil and always leaves a sense of cleanliness and comfort attained by no other preparation, for its intended purposes it has never been equalled.
Prepared by LEVI TOWER, Jr., Boston. Sold everywhere by druggists, 60 cents a bottle.

THE TYPHOON IN CHINA.
The Hong Kong Press, of Sept. 25th, gives the subjoined general description of the terrible typhoon which visited that locality three days previously.

"It is our painful duty to record by the present mail one most appalling disasters that has ever happened to this colony. A typhoon of unprecedented violence raged in this neighborhood on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning last. The weather during the day had been threatening, the barometer having fallen very considerably during the forenoon and still continuing low in the evening. About six o'clock the wind began to threaten, and shortly after eight o'clock was blowing a strong gale. This increased rapidly, and in the course of an hour it was evident that a typhoon of a severe character was to be apprehended, and this proved too soon to be the case. The barometer kept up its falling, and the wind increased frightfully in violence, raging and howling at first, and after a time sounding like one continual peal of musketry, broken at intervals by artillery, as sudden and more violent gusts swept through the harbor and over the land. At times even above the force howling of the wind could be heard the pitiful cries of thousands vainly battling with the storm. Not a single ship in port escaped undamaged, and the casualties and loss of life—the latter estimated at over 2000 souls—have exceeded anything which has ever before been upon record.

The city after the occurrence presented the appearance of a town which had been besieged. In all directions were to lie as and shattered houses, crumbling walls, naked poles and rafters standing out gloomily against the leaden sky. The roads were strewn right and left with debris, wrecks of boats and trees—some of gigantic size—torn up by the roots. The telegraph on the Island and the marine telegraph between Hong Kong and Saigon was interrupted, the gas pipes were torn up, dead bodies in all directions washed ashore; the flag-staff at the Peak was seen looking at an angle, a sad signal to ships miles away of the ravages to which the colony had been subjected. The tide was exceptionally high, which materially increased the amount of the damage inflicted, and to the eastward a great deal of injury both to life and property was caused by the height of water, which on the place at East Point was on an average about four feet high. To add to the disasters, a fire occurred in a house on the Praya, near the Canton wharf, but fortunately was soon got under, but is a noticeable and somewhat ominous incident, in connection with the news as to incendiaries from Macao, as it is to be feared that there are desperate characters here ready to avail themselves of any such disaster as a typhoon for the purpose of plunder. So strong was the wind that the flames of the fire were blown out in some instances like the light of a candle. A very curious circumstance is mentioned on good authority, namely, that a large number of clocks in the colony stopped at the same hour. Our informant has heard of five, and suggests the hypothesis of a slight shock of an earthquake having occurred while the typhoon was raging. Certainly the oscillation in many of the houses would favor such a supposition.

To convey an adequate idea in general words of the awful effects which this unprecedented gale has produced is impossible. At the present moment all business is suspended and an oppressive silence reigns over the colony, broken only by the clicking of the hammers of those repairing the houses and other ruins at Aberdeen, near the docks, lies high and dry on the land the magnificent steamer Alaska, belonging to the Pacific Mail Company, and the dead bodies of many of the victims are being drifted ashore in all directions."

The most exposed portion of the city appears to have been what is called the Praya. One of those who witnessed there a correspondent of the Press says:

"I had been out dining with a friend and started to return home at a little after eleven. It was then blowing very hard, but neither I nor any of my companions had an idea of the severity to which the gale was destined to reach. I accordingly went with a companion to the Praya to see the sight, and certainly never witnessed anything so striking in my life. Although I have seen many typhoons during a stay of over fourteen years in Hong Kong, I do not know of any which has caused so much injury to the colony and so much loss of life.

By the time we had arrived at the Praya the wind had freshened rapidly, and the typhoon was raging with full vigor. The sea was breaking over the Praya with terrible force, while the roar of the wind was deafening. The waves broke bright with phosphorescent light and presented a striking and awful sight. The lights on shore flickered through the darkness and seemed only to render it more intense. Gradually the swell increased, and the waves rushed first half across the Praya and afterward quite across it, and before I had reached Paston's wharf, toward which I was going westward, they were more than across the Praya, and I had to push my way knee deep in water. Clinging to such projections from the houses as were within my reach, I endeavored to continue on my course but soon found that it was too dangerous to persevere, as the waves were coming in with such force that there was every chance of being washed away, while tiles and bricks were falling in all directions from the shaken houses. It was about 1 o'clock when I was thus forced to beat a retreat, and I may mention that up to that time none of the sad casualties which have been recorded had occurred; and as the gale began to moderate by 3 o'clock, it is evident that the havoc must have been the work of little more than two hours. The details of loss of property and life at Hong Kong and Macao confirm the accounts already received, and are chiefly of local interest.

POTTERY IN THE UNITED STATES. The growing scarcity of fuel in Great Britain with the consequent increase of price, prophesies, according to the Philadelphia Press, the eventual transfer of several lines of trade to this country. Our imports of iron and steel will soon cease, and we become exporters of those articles. The manufacture of crockery, also, which is a prominent industry in England, will also become ours. Already at Trenton, N. J., there are factories where the labor-saving spirit of American industry has improved upon the primitive methods still employed in Staffordshire, England, the seat of the business in that country. One of the first processes in making pottery is to thoroughly intermix the clay and water, which is done in England by men stirring the ingredients together with paddles in large vats. When the clay and water have come to the consistency of cream the men ladle the "slip," as it is called, from the vat into the sieves. Then shaking the sieve, which consists of fine cambric, over another vat, after the fine material has passed through, the coarser particles are emptied out and the sieve refilled. In this country, however, the paddles are rotated by steam, the slip is pumped up into the sieves by the same power, and the sieves are agitated by steam machinery.

The Press gives the following information concerning the method by which some of the English manufacturers who have visited Trenton and witnessed the success already attained there, aim to destroy the trade here: "By mixing with their best goods just enough of seconds (or pieces with chips off and spur marks) to swear by, they are said to pass them through our custom house on a reduced valuation of twenty-five percent. They have established branch houses in New York, sending over kinsmen to manipulate their invoices, but such tricks will be resented by our manufacturers and exposed to the department at Washington. Another trick is to swamp the market by sending over a surplus stock to be sold just below the cost of manufacturing, and steadily pursue this policy till the industry in our country has to be stopped, the factories changed to some more profitable pursuit and the whole staff of employes scattered. A manufacturer who has been largely engaged in supplying the American trade is said to have expressed a determination before his return to England this summer, to uproot the Trenton potteries and destroy the plant of capital there in the potting business."

The clay used in the Trenton potteries comes from out of the Mississippi, and the mining and transportation of this becoming quite an industry. It is as yet comparatively small, but still employs a large number of persons. In regard to the qualities of the clay, Wedgwood in a letter to the Lords in 1785, requesting the suppression of pottery in the colonies, on the ground that the establishment and growth would unsettle the business in England, declared it to be "equal if not superior" to that found in the England isles.

DON'T SPARE THE PAINT
A writer in the Chicago Inter-Ocean gives some good advice on the subject of improving the appearance and the durability of farm buildings and fences, by a liberal use of paint. Though the neglect of buildings in this respect is less in the New England states than in the West, there is in the following extract some suggestions that are worth heeding:

A short trip into the country recently raised the suggestion, that almost every farm house that our farmers too greatly ignore their best friend—paint. Hardly a farm was passed, in this ride of forty miles, that did not, from its unpainted door-yard fences and outbuildings, present a cold, forbidding, and unsightly appearance. A large proportion of farm dwellings and a larger ratio of barns, year after year unpainted, and the dirty, weather-beaten appearance gives the farm a general look of sadness and discomfort. Not only for "the looks of the thing," but as a matter of strict and severe economy, all buildings on the farm should be thoroughly painted, and if the farmer will look around him he will generally notice that those of his neighbors who are the most successful, and generally obtain the highest price for their products, are such as have snug, well-painted buildings upon their farms. The effect of such good-looking and well protected buildings upon the farmer himself and his family is a consideration that should not be slighted. No young man on the farm can take any pride or pleasure in keeping up the surroundings of an old weather-beaten, window-less barn, nor will "the girls" care to adorn a front yard with flowers or shrubs if behind them all is a contrast stands the unpainted blindless house. The ideas and habits these young people receive and acquire in youth follow them through life and they are apt to live in about such houses and build such barns as "we used to have at home." Now this is wrong in every sense. But a farmer may say the buildings are so old and weather-beaten that they "will drink up" enough paint to ruin him. This is not true. If the building be a barn that is old, first go over it with a stiff broom to remove the dirt, and, if a dwelling, follow this with a rubbing of sandpaper and stop up the holes and cracks with putty. This being done, the next thing is the paint. Upon the house put on a good coating of lead and oil. It does not cost much and gives a smooth, handsome finish. There are many kinds of paint sold ready mixed, some of which are good, and others poor, but a person is never cheated in buying pure lead and good boiled oil. One gallon of paint will cover about four superficial yards the first coat and six the second. For out-buildings a cheap and durable paint may be made in the following manner.

Put half a bushel of good lime into a clean barrel, and add sufficient water to make a thin whitewash; stir well until every lump is dissolved, and then add fifty pounds of whiting, fifty pounds whiting, and fifty pounds of road dust finely sifted. Then add linseed oil, and mix to a thick paste. When ready for work, thin to a proper consistency for application with the brush, with fresh buttermilk, adding a small quantity at a time to give the ingredients a chance to assimilate. The paint will cover a much greater extent of surface by adding a gallon of salt soap—This paint is equally good for fences and all outdoor rough work. You can make more or less, but observe these proportions. The amount required to cover any given surface will depend altogether upon the condition of that surface. Upon new, smooth wood a gallon will cover from 300 to 400 square feet.

The fall is the best time in the year to paint. The oil dries upon the surface better, there is generally more leisure than then to do the work, and the air is not filled with flies that in the summer and spring alight on the fresh paint and make unsightly spots—Buildings thus protected are a pride to the farmer and his family, and the influence will be seen and felt in hundreds of ways that will contribute to the happiness of the family and bring pleasant recollections of home after the family circle has been broken, and its members scattered among homes of their own far away from the old homestead."

STATE NEWS.
Saddleback and Mt. Abram are white with snow.

The temperance movement in Biddeford and Saco is making most flattering progress.

The sheds of the Grand Trunk, in Portland are just about completed. They are built upon the new wharf, which is 600 feet long, 30 wide, and is probably the finest wharf in the State. The sheds are built on three sides of it and are 600 feet in length and 50 feet wide.

Catherine Clark, of Rockland on Sunday evening smashed in the door of her husband's house and store with an axe, broke open the money drawer and rifled it of its contents, and then assaulted Officer Cook with the axe, but was finally arrested.

Mrs. Lydia Smith of Mt. Vernon is over eighty years old, and has spun this fall 200 skeins of yarn, besides doing the ordinary work for three in the family. She has lived in the same house for fifty-five years, and raised up a family of eight children, six of whom are living.

The building originally designed as a chapel at the Insane Hospital at Augusta, which has recently been fitted up for patients, is, according to the Kennebec Journal, totally unfit for their reception and the money spent upon it is little better than thrown away.—The trustees don't propose to accept it.

There are a large number of tramps wandering about Portland. From ten to thirty have lodgings in the station house every night. On the first being mentioned to a party of these vagrants that there was work on the Ogdensburg road, one of them exclaimed, "Do you think that I would work with a shovel?"

Saturday evening, about half-past eight o'clock, Mrs. Thomas Frost, was sitting before an air-tight stove in her house at Augusta, holding her three weeks old infant, when at once her clothing was in flames. She tossed the babe from her arms, the snow but where, but luckily it landed on a bed standing in a corner of the room. Her husband and mother rushed into the room, and extinguished the fire, badly burning their hands in so doing. Mrs. Frost suffered no injury.

The dwelling house, ell and stable belonging to Mrs. Ella A. Paine, at the "Falls," Norway, was totally consumed by fire Thursday, together with nearly all the furniture, &c.—The house was occupied by Mrs. Paine and Mr. F. J. Browne. The buildings were insured for $1000.

Mrs. Mary Robson, widow of the late Joseph Hobson, esq., of Buxton, and mother of Hon. Joseph Hobson, of Saco, died quite suddenly at Moderation, Monday morning. There was a little trial before the police court in Skowhegan, Monday, of Wm. Stillard for stealing a trunk from the Eastern Express office belonging to a young lady school teacher, boarding at Mr. Fred. Hoyt's. On the first day of December the members of the city government of Portland and other citizens of that city will visit Worcester on the invitation of the officers of the Worcester & Nashua Railroad, the occasion being the opening of the through route from Worcester to Portland, over the Worcester & Nashua, Nashua & Rochester and Portland & Rochester Railroads. The visiting party will include, besides members of the Portland city government, members of the Portland Board of Trade.

Ellsworth had a rousing temperance meeting on Sunday evening last, under the auspices of the "Ellsworth Temperance League." All of the churches dispensed with their usual evening services, and nearly a thousand people attended the temperance meeting at Hancock Hall. The choirs of the several churches united in singing, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Sheed, selections from the Scriptures were read by Rev. Mr. Garretson, and a logical address in favor of individual total abstinence, was delivered by Rev. Mr. Lyon.

Sisters finished last Saturday night the work on the Skowhegan factory and were treated to an oyster supper by the contractor. There is considerable excitement over the disappearance of Mr. Fairgrave, the gentleman who is to run the factory. He left Skowhegan nearly five weeks ago for New York to buy the machinery for the factory and he has not been heard from since by either the contractors or his family. He was a very fine man, perfectly honorable and trustworthy and greatly attached to his home and family. It is pretty generally believed there is foul play as he had considerable money with him.

A Triumph of Chemistry.
Among the numerous health-giving discoveries of pharmaceutical chemistry, none has achieved a more transcendent and lasting success than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Of course there is a reason for this. It would have been impossible to palm it, for nearly a quarter of a century, upon so shrewd a people as the Americans, a worthless article, or have established by mere advertising such a reputation as the Bitters enjoy, if they did not possess a substantial title to public confidence. The truth of this statement is proved by the fact that bogus bitters, no matter how extensively puffed, usually enjoy but a transient existence, are then discovered to be worthless, and discarded. Hostetter's Bitters, on the contrary, after a career of twenty years, were never so popular as they are to-day. Soon after their appearance it became manifest that they possessed in a remarkable degree the power of toning and regulating the human system, and to-day they rank as the standard restorative of the age.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1874.

The prevailing spirit in the Southern States is becoming daily more manifest. Now that the elections are over, and the Democracy are in the ascendant, the people in the South do not hesitate to give true expression to their real sentiments. As another illustration of the animosity prevailing among the Southern whites against the negro race and his attainment to citizenship, the Mobile State Journal relates that, only two days after election, a Democratic leader in that State, one who had been honored with the votes of his party for one of the highest positions in the Government, was asked what "the Democracy were going to do with the negro?" His reply was "We intend to keep the negro. We intend to send him to the field to work, where he belongs, and not let him hold office and rule white men." We have no doubt the Democratic leader spoke "as one having authority."

The London correspondent of the Edinburgh Scotsman understands that the British government is disposed to be very liberal in regard to arrangements for the due representation of Great Britain at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition, and that it is not improbable that the Prince of Wales will head the Commission. It would be both gratifying and profitable if this should prove to be correct. That there should be a full exhibition of our own manufactures and from every section of the country, is in every way desirable. It will be by the sight and study of our resources and products that the greatest advantage will be gained from the exhibition of 1876, but that advantage would be wonderfully augmented if we could also compare our own with British manufactures. Upon these last Britain we have been more particularly dependent for many articles, we are striving for independence, and eventual mastery in the markets of the world. We long to see the day when our woolen, and some other goods of the best qualities, will be sold under their proper names as American, and not purchased by the people because they are supposed to be of foreign production. A comparison will do much, we firmly believe, to show that as to many articles, we need have no hesitation in proclaiming our own works as our own. It is said that the British Government is acting in this behalf from political reasons we shall not be concerned about the motives, we shall gladly welcome the contributions, and accord them the praise justly their due. But what we expect to be the principal outcome is progress in manufactures on our side.

The Atlanta Herald of the 15th inst., speaks enthusiastically of the profits of farming in Georgia. It says "In yesterday's Herald it was shown that a Georgia farmer, upon a one-horse farm, had made in one year $2 102 clear money that another, upon a two-horse farm, produced crops that sold for $3,—, and cleared in net cash $1,012, that another farmer had, upon four acres, made a full bale abundant living for a family of eight people, and had laid up money besides, and that a Georgia boy under twenty years of age had by his labor upon the farm, supported himself and sold products to the amount of $650. The process by which these wonderful results have been achieved is perfectly simple, and its accomplishment lies within the compass of any average man. It is no front to be maintained. There are thousands of broad acres in Georgia, clothed with virgin forests, with all the rich loam yet untouched by the hand of man. There are thousands of acres lying fallow for the want of starving teams and willing hands to make them sprinkle into bloom and bounty. And yet a fiend's like advertisement in the Herald of last week, heading for a score in a dry goods store, brought sixty-two applications before 9 o'clock on the day on which it first appeared. Why some of these surplus young gentlemen do not adjourn to the country, and get down to work, is a mystery we are unable to solve."

The Californian's, in view of their enormous capacity for grain raising, and the proximity of its ever-stocked markets, in which the producers at a stated claim occasionally indulge are disposed to look at the matter philosophically, and with something more of forbearance than is usual in cases of the sort. A San Francisco paper, for instance, concurs the present mania for wheat growing in the genial State—which some think has already been carried to the full extent of wise economy, by taking into account, in estimating the prospects of a future market, the chances of an increase of the wheat eating population of the world. Thus, estimating the present wheat eating at 175,000,000, the quantity of wheat required for their annual consumption must come, moderately enough, to about, at 1,400,000,000 bushels. Taking into natural increase of this population to be 3,000,000 per annum, and, looking with proportionate confidence at the chances that there will be an equal number of converts to wheat eating,—that is, that there will be 6,000,000 more who will, under the influence of fashion and progressive good taste, be led to adopt a wheaten diet in preference to that which they are now accustomed—it is conclusive reached that there will be an annual augmentation of the wheat eating population to the extent of 9,000,000 mouths, and a consequent increased demand, year by year, of 15,000,000 bushels of wheat. The grain growers of Europe, who take no such prospective view of demand, may moderately increase their acreage from year to year, as existing circumstances may dictate, but a large margin will be left to those Californians who are wise in time, and sagacious enough to foresee and anticipate the supplies which must be forthcoming to fulfill that of the theory above suggested. This speculation affords an illustration of the chastic power of figures, and shows into what boys of political economy mathematicians may be led by the combinations of statistics.

CIVIL WAR IN NEW ZEALAND. The war in New Zealand between the colonists and the Maories, or natives, which some years ago threatened to drive the European settlers out of the island, has well nigh dropped out of remembrance. It was a vacillating struggle, and was terminated at last by the Home Government refusing at length to meddle longer with the disputes between the Europeans and the natives. Then it was soon discovered that the slow and steady pressure of immigration would exert more force against the warlike Maories than could be exerted by royal troops. A policy for the development of the island's resources was framed by Mr. Julius Vogel, now Colonial Treasurer of the colony, and although it met with severe criticism it has been in a great measure carried out, meeting with abundant success. Railways, public works and immigration were the features of his scheme, for the carrying out of which several millions of pounds sterling and large grants of public lands would be required.—Such an undertaking for a group of small settlements, sparsely peopled and widely scattered, seemed formidable, but was urged as the only hope for the maintenance and growth of the colony. The estimated cost of trunk lines of railway was put at $37,500,000, and the necessary grants of land at 2,500,000 acres. There was reason for doubting the capacity of the colony, then barely free of the burden of the Maori trouble, to bear this weight. The undertaking, however, has justified Mr. Vogel's hopes. The construction of 1010 miles of railway has been authorized, of which a small portion is open for traffic. The total cost, Mr. Vogel estimates, will be less than $50,000,000, the outlay being spread over a number of years. Meanwhile the ordinary revenue of the colony has increased from about $2,500,000 four years ago to about $7,000,000 in 1873-8, while the land sales have quadrupled since 1871.

HUMANITY DISCOURAGED. The English Board of Trade finds it necessary to consider the advisability of increasing the payment made to masters of ships saving lives at sea. The pecuniary loss frequently incident to the practice of humanity presents a strong temptation to pass by distress unheeded. A case in which acting the "Good Samaritan" cost more than it ought to have done, is related as follows: A ship loaded at a port in China, not long ago, and sailed for "a port in Europe," the latter port not being named. The crew were shipped for the trip. The intention was to enter the Baltic and find a market, but in the North Atlantic a distressed ship was spoken, from which 17 persons were rescued. Then provisions falling short, the captain was obliged to make for Falmouth, England, at which place the crew claimed their discharge on the ground that they had reached a port in Europe. The case went before the courts, and was decided against the captain. The result was that while, for the generosity of the captain the owners received only $83, being the State grant at the usual rate for feeding so many men so many days, their immediate loss was about $1800, to which should be added the more serious loss of missing a market.

A NEW INDUSTRY. The active principle of madder, called alizarin, which when extracted from the raw material costs $3 75 per pound, is now made from coal, in Germany, and sold at $1.25 per pound. The capitalists engaged in the business there have taken a new departure by purchasing 50,000 acres of land in Southwestern Virginia, the tract being underlaid with coal, of the best kind for making the dye. The purchase was made last spring, and the German firm is confident that it can carry on the manufacture in this country at a profit which will pay them handsomely.

After considering the relative merits of Mr Disraeli and Mr Forster as candidates for the Lord-Rectorship of Glasgow University, the London Telegraph considers the claims of Ralph Waldo Emerson, who, as we have shown, received five hundred votes to the seven hundred which elected the Premier. It says that, in the practical work of the office, Mr. Emerson could not be expected to do much, his claims being purely literary and national. But it adds,

They are higher in their own way than those either of Mr. Disraeli or Mr. Forster. Mr. Emerson's supreme distinction is that he was the first American of brilliant talent to teach his countrymen how pretty were their backwoods, their huge railways, the almighty dollar, their ballot boxes, their Presidential elections, and even their falls of Niagara by the side of real intellectual progress. He told the smart men about New York that they were a set of unmitigated barbarians compared with the old Greeks, although the Greeks were not able to "wire" the victories of Themistocles so as to run express steamers on the Egean Sea. The lofty, ideal teachings of the Sage of Concord are regarded by the Telegraph as doing much to elevate what it calls our grossly material home, and his election would be a deserved tribute of homage to a pure and noble mind and a subject of just pride to his country.

The reports of destitution, hunger, and, unless relief is speedily afforded, possible famine, that come from Nebraska, have an appalling significance. An official statement concerning the condition of things represents the abundant of the crops as so complete that starvation stares many thousands in the face, five hundred families in a single county having only food for a few days and no knowledge of where the next is to come from. To the well fed and well clothed Eastern man, who, even in a time of business depression can still afford those substantial comforts which with many would pass for luxury, it may be difficult to present a picture of the horrors that are likely to occur in a section of our own country. In spite of bountiful crops and generally increased resources. The settlers in Nebraska is not simply one of reduced wages and depressed industry. It is a fight for the mastery between life and death, with the odds in favor of the latter, unless reinforcements are promptly supplied. Hard times and famine mean very different things, they are as diverse as the fortunes of two shipwrecked mariners, one of whom loses his wardrobe, the other his life. The benevolent spirit of the country is appealed to and it has responded so nobly in the past that there is considerable hope of this instance. No doubt there will be found a lot of charity in broad acres and at home in all the large cities, but still the waste of pampered appetites might have hundreds from starvation in Nebraska, if, through no fault of the citizens that this affliction has come upon them, and what fact strengthens the claim they have upon the substantial sympathies of the more prosperous.

THE MENNONITES IN KANSAS. About two thousand Mennonites have already arrived in Kansas, and have located in Topeka, temporarily until their lands are ready for them. They have purchased a tract of 100,000, situated in the counties of Harvey, Marion, Reno and Sedgwick, contiguous to a railroad. They expect in the spring to have houses built for every family. Some of their peculiarities are thus sketched by a correspondent writing from Topeka:

"The number already arrived here and yet to come this year embraces about a thousand families, who bring with them about $5 000,000 in money. They are all farmers and expect to engage in grain and stock raising, but every man among them is must proficient mechanical trade, that being a requirement in their organization. They build their own houses, make their own farming implements and manufacture their own clothing. They have stores of their own, too, and in every way manage, as far as practicable, to do all their business of a general character in favor of their own community. While staying here in Topeka they have bought quite extensively of household goods and of horses, cattle, wagons, and other articles necessary to the prompt commencement of operations in their new homes. They have probably spent here in two weeks for such articles, fully $100 000. They buy carefully and sparingly, and display good judgment in making their selections. Their favorite purchases in the household line are washboards and cooking stoves, two things that they have heretofore had no experience with, and which seem to strike them as being of special utility. The washing machine is a snare to them, and they have no use for smoothing irons which clothes can be easily pounded out with a stick or board. They buy no dry goods and but few groceries, being evidently plain both in their apparel and victuals. The men are strong and robust and the women fresh and tidy. The dress is a monotonous plainness, and especially noticeable for neckgear. The men wear coarse cassimere trousers, loose cotton blouses or jackets, small black caps and low leather shoes. The women wear short cotton frocks with sleeves coming only to the elbow, leather slippers and handkerchief turbans. I have not seen a pair of stockings on man or woman, and there is not a ribbon or a piece of lace or jewelry in the whole colony."

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

"Sense" is the way the Dubuque Herald spells Cæsar, Neat, but not gaudy.

The Western Democratic Congressmen say that the Speakership must go West.

The C. O. Beall who turns out to be elected Delegate to Congress from Oregon, is a Republican, as is the disappointed competitor.

Gen Beauregard is delighted with the Massachusetts election—which makes some who contributed to the result consider whether they are jolly or not.

The mountaineers still for freedom. The only district in Kentucky which has chosen a Republican Congressman is the ninth, which comprises the mountainous section of the State.

The Nevada Legislature will stand. Senate—Republicans, 18; Democrats, 7. Assembly—Democrats, 17, Republicans, 31; Independent, 3. The Republican majority on a joint ballot is 22.

The Democrats used to groan over military displays on civic occasions, when arranged by Republicans, but now they boast of something particularly grand in that line as likely to attend the inauguration of Governor Tilden of New York. Circumstances do alter cases.

Hon. John D. White, member of Congress elect from Kentucky, will be the youngest Representative in the next Congress, having barely attained his twenty-sixth year. His father was at one time Speaker of the House.

One town in Alabama, with a population of seventy-five in 1870, is reported to have given a Democratic majority of 700 at the recent election. It is the banner town for growth, or else for Democratic activity at the polls.

The list of Missouri aspirants to Carl Schurz's seat in the United States Senate has just begun; but it already includes Gen. F. M. Cockrell, John S. Phelps, ex-Gov. Thomas C. Reynolds, ex-Gov. B. Gratz Brown, George G. Vest and Gilson Hutchins.

TILTON VS. BEECHER

THE MOTION FOR A BILL OF PARTICULARS DENIED

New York, Nov. 10. At the general term of the Brooklyn City Court this morning, Judges McCue and Reynolds rendered decisions in the matter of appeal from an order made at the special term of the city court, denying the application of the counsel for the defence in the Tilton and Beecher suit, to compel the plaintiff to furnish a bill of particulars of the times and places at which acts of adultery were committed. Judge Reynolds in his decision says it would be idle to compel him to name the precise time of any alleged acts except for the purpose of excluding all others from his claim which is the object of the motion. Without discussing at length whether the court has power to restrict the plaintiff by a bill of particulars in such an action as this, he proposes to rest his conclusion on the ground that this is not a proper case for the excuse of such a power. After citing numerous cases from English divorce cases, he affirmed the decision of Judge Neilson, denying a bill of particulars. Judge McCue dissents from the decision of his associate.

Judge McCue before passing to the examination of the question on this appeal, deems it proper to notice two objections raised to defendant's application since the early disposition of these objections. First—that the defendant desires a bill of particulars of the confession made by the plaintiff's wife, which it is claimed could not be introduced [le]gal at the defendant. Second—that the claim of the plaintiff is for loss of affections comforts, society and assistance of his wife, and that if the defendant had accomplished this without seduction his liability would be the same. An examination of order to show cause disposes of the first objection. A bill of particulars does not call for the confessions of the wife only, those made by the defendant himself. The second objection is not well taken. Special action in the case might give him re[lie]f but in this action failing to prove that defendant has debauched the plaintiff's wife, the plaintiff has no standing in the court. The question to be considered is has the court power after issue joined in an action of criminal [con]. to order a bill of particulars of divers other days and time after any particular day named in the complaint.

Judge McCue goes on to say that if the defendant is guilty on the one day alleged, he is guilty of the wrong complained, and the plaintiff is entitled to receive damages. He does not concur with Judge Neilson that the question is not of much moment to the defendant, as the information to which he could have been entitled, may be obtained by examining the plaintiff before trial. In conclusion he holds that the defendant is entitled to the bill of particulars, and that by granting it the plaintiff's [...] would not be injured.

The latter protested against the count being received on grounds of fraudulency. A member of the Committee presented a statement in writing showing that he could prove that the returns from St. James had been taken out of the State after their original delivery. He denied any intention of charging the Secretary of the State with knowingly committing any wrong but he could prove the returns to have been removed. Some excitement ensued when a second return from the same poll was discovered, agreeing with the statement kept by the Conservatives, thus proving the returns to have been tampered with. The latter returns were counted by the board and the protest withdrawn.

Everything is quiet throughout the State. Nothing has been heard of the whereabouts of Smith or Wheeler.

INTERVIEWS WITH THE CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

St Louis Nov 10. Judge Poland, Chairman of the Congressional Committee to investigate Arkansas affairs, Judge Wilshire, member of Congress-elect from the Little Rock district and Col. Hynes, the present member for that district, arrived here yesterday, and several interviews with them are published, but they differ in some material respects.

JUDGE POLAND ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION

In one account Judge Poland, it is asserted, said that Garland, the Governor recently elected, is trying to act fairly, and although not possessed of great moral force himself, and being surrounded by a strong element of, perhaps the vicious sort, is trying to do well. The Baxter faction sustains the Garland Government, while the Brooks men sustain Lieutenant Governor Smith. The programme of the Brooks party evidently is in the event of the Federal Government favoring Smith for a seat in the gubernatorial chairs to press the Brooks Baxter suit, which is still pending in court, in one of reseating as the legally elected Governor. If, however, Smith is seated as Governor by Federal force, he will have to be maintained there by the same power, but Judge Poland does not think that such action will be taken. Smith, he says, is no more Governor than Baxter was, and he thinks the authority of the latter was gained by fraud.

Another despatch says Judge Poland asserts that although both Baxter and Brooks have disappeared from the political arena, yet the question now at issue is, Which of them was elected Governor in 1872? The new Constitution, Mr. Poland says, was conceived and adopted in a very irregular manner. The old Constitution provided for amendments only, and provided methods for their adoption, and power was delegated to the General Assembly of the State to submit to the people the question whether or not they would hold a constitutional convention. Thus, it appears that the action of the Arkansas Legislature in the premises was without authority and irregular. A parallel case to this Mr Poland finds in the celebrated Dorr rebellion in Rhode Island.

The hopes and ambition of Smith rest upon the illegality of the constitution. Baxter with Lt Gov. Smith and the whole radical ticket of 1870 were elected for four years less than one-half of which they had served when a new election was held under the new constitution this fall, which provided their successors. In case the new constitution should be declared invalid, of course the present State Government would no longer exercise the duties at present incumbent upon it, and the question would recur to the election of 1872 as between the Brooks and Baxter candidates.

Touching this matter Mr Poland freely expresses his conviction that Brooks received a large majority of the votes cast. The testimony taken before the Congressional committee plainly intimates this, and it is rendered still more probable in Poland's view by the fact that the Democracy voted almost unanimously for Brooks as against Baxter. Of the prospects for an early settlement of the question Mr Poland does not speak in a very hopeful manner. He regards the issue affecting the validity of the new Constitution as one of very grave importance and inasmuch as it is strictly a legal question he gives no opinion whatever respecting it.

The Judge also said that the testimony before his committee was about concluded but the people seemed to have a greater feeling of security with such a body in their midst, and asked earnestly for its retention. He therefore appointed Hon J D Ward a sub-committee and left him at Little Rock with a Sergeant at-Arms and a reporter. He will doubtless find something to occupy his time. Mr Poland has gone to Washington, at the call of Attorney General Williams.

The Missing Sea Captain. In the Whig and Courier of yesterday an account was given of the mysterious disappearance of Captain O C Clifford, of the schooner Ruth Thomas, which arrived on Tuesday afternoon. On yesterday a letter was found in the cabin of the vessel directed to his wife, in which Captain Clifford stated that he was to take the Pullman train for Boston. The reason for his sudden disappearance was that while absent on his last voyage, he drank too much in Newburyport, Mass, and was short of the freight funds due his employers, the Messrs. Swett & Co, of Broad street. These gentlemen say he had been in their employ for two years, they have always found him faithful and reliable in every way, and that the amount of the deficit was so small that it would have been arranged without any difficulty. Captain Clifford had only arrived at the wharf in Brewer about three hours before the evening train left for the west, and had not seen Swett & Co, before so suddenly taking his departure.

The increase of drunkenness in England during the last ten years is remarkable, the number of persons charged with this offence being 182,941, against 94,745 in 1873. The greatest increase was in the latter year, when under the new Intoxicating Liquor act, it jumped from about ten or eleven thousand to nearly thirty-two thousand over the preceding year. Whether the general increase was specially due to high wages, stricter police supervision or other causes is not known, though it has been greater among men than women, the proportion of the latter to the former being one to four in 1867, and even less than that for 1873. The returns do not, it may be added, show the number proceeded against, but the number of proceedings taken so that an habitual drunkard may be counted more than once in the same year.

LATE DAYS

BY LOUISA BUSHNELL

How sweet y dies the year
Serene y ... to its last repose!
It dawned with joy when first the end drew near
Now hushed it sinks to its golden close,
As hearth fires burning low
Lie still and glow

I hear our little maid
Sing through the rustling leaves her cheery song
Her spring time voice rings out so unafraid,
So like to one that has been silent long
I shut my eyes to see
... can be

The past looks all a dream
I'd ... my ... I doubt my grief!
The shadow ... strange ... the ... gleam
And all drops from the ... with red leaf
... by the cold wind
Far, far behind

Now there is no unrest,
And warm ... wrapped within this filmy haze,
The ... yellow net across the west
Upon the ... I gaze
And feel the tender peace
Of days that cease

So, when the colors burn
Their glowing hearts must fall to ashen brown
And ... to ... shadows ...
But then the gentle snow will flutter down
A soft, white sleep will fall,
And cover all—

Then long, long quiet sleep
That falls upon all death from out the sky
... keep
... seem to lie
... pray it may be
With me with thee.
